

GAME FARM AT STATE HOSPITAL URGED IN REPORT

Legislature is Asked to Establish Preserve
North of Dixon

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Establishment of game farms at the state institutions at Vandalia, Kanakake, St. Charles, Dixon and Mendon was recommended by the Uniform Fish and Game laws commission created by the 55th general assembly, in report just made to the present session.

The report was submitted in the upper house by Senator Earl B. Searcy of Springfield, and in the lower house by Representative Frank A. McCarthy of Elgin. Six other recommendations were offered.

Game farms at the state institutions would be modeled on those already established at Yorkville and Alton. The suggestion is the result of a tour of state institutions made last summer.

Other recommendations included: Enactment of a bill making it unlawful for any person to bring game into the state which was taken in another state contrary to the laws of that state.

The working out of some plan whereby revenue from the sale of licenses sold by the department of conservation may be used to buy lands for reforestation, and game preserve lands.

Passage of a law embodying provisions in regard to the rights of commercial fisheries on Lake Michigan.

Development of reforestation by means of adequate appropriations to the division of forestry.

Creation of a permanent Uniform Fish and Game laws commission to cooperate with adjoining states in all matters pertaining to wild life conservation.

Part of Report
The report, in part, follows:
"Our investigations seem to prove conclusively that the wide spread distribution of game birds eggs is wasteful and fails to produce the necessary number of birds. Raising of birds at state institutions will result in a considerable saving and will put many more birds in the field."

"In selecting the named institutions the commission took into consideration the necessary qualifications: suitable land and water supply and available inmate labor of proper type."

"It is clearly a waste of money to raise game birds and liberate them in woods and fields infested with vermin. For this reason we strongly urge a comprehensive system of vermin control. The game code should be amended to allow the killing of predatory animals in such a manner as will reduce their number."

Certain fur bearing animals which are not predatory, such as the muskrat, should be given increased, if not absolute, protection. Owners of levees, however, should be permitted to destroy animals damaging or blocking ditches and drains, and farmers permitted to kill any animals known to be destroying poultry."

"Conferences with states adjoining Lake Michigan brought information that unless immediate remedial steps are taken the great commercial fishing industry will within a few years be practically destroyed. The proposed regulatory statutes discussed at the Great Lakes Fishery Conference at Lansing, Michigan should be the basis for an Illinois plan of uniform laws."

"The 1927 session of the General Assembly passed a law which submitted to referendum the question as to whether the state should issue bonds for the purchase of lands for wild life sanctuaries and public hunting and shooting grounds. While it received a tremendous vote, the bond issue did not carry at the general election largely because the people did not understand that the hunting and fishing license fees were to be used to pay for the bond issue."

"Leading conservationists are again urging the passage of a law intended to develop a system of conservation, reforestation and outdoor recreation in Illinois. The commission considers the establishment of a comprehensive forward looking program the very foundation of the movement to restore the natural resources of Illinois for the benefit of all citizens."

Marshall Foch Able to Get Some Sleep
Paris, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Marshall Foch was able to get some sleep last night after an attack of indigestion had disturbed his earlier hours, his physicians, Drs. Daveniere and Heitz Boyer, said this morning.

His general condition was described as stationary.

While the physicians were extremely guarded in their discussion of the case it was learned that new kidney complications which might bring on a new crisis are feared.

It was said early today another specialist might be called in during the day for a consultation, which was not to be held until this afternoon in the hope the patient might be able to sleep still more.

The blinds on his windows were opened at 10 a. m., to permit sunshine to enter the room.

When Christmas falls on Tuesday as it did in 1928, it is supposed to indicate a bright year, with a mild winter, leading to a good summer and good harvests.

BULLETIN

Boston, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who took off from Belize, British Honduras, today, on the second lap of his airmail flight to Panama, arrived at Tela at 9:43 a. m., a radio message received here by the Tropical Radio & Telegraph Company reported.

Two Hops Today

Belize, British Honduras, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's task today in his new international airmail piloting venture involved two hops covering a total of 415 miles over sea and mountains.

From Belize his course was to Tela, Honduras, 140 miles south and east across the Gulf of Honduras. From Tela his route was straight across about 275 miles to Managua, where Honduran and Nicaraguan mountains he will make his second overnight stop en route to Cristobal, Panama.

Tomorrow his schedule calls for an early take-off at Managua and a fueling stop at Punta Arenas, Costa Rica. He expects to arrive at Cristobal tomorrow afternoon, remaining in Panama until ready to retrace his route next week.

Carries Much Mail

Aboard the amphibian plane which he is piloting is mail for Central American points from the United States—the first to be carried over a commercial airmail route to the Isthmian countries. The flight itself is the inaugural venture in the new fortnightly service, which, the Pan-American Airways, Inc. plans eventually to operate on a tri-weekly basis.

Lindbergh is a newcomer to Tela, although he had visited Honduras previously, having stopped at Tegucigalpa, inland capital of the country, a year ago on his first Central American flight. To Managua he is making his second visit in a little more than a year. Much of the elaborateness of his reception a year ago dispensed with today by Marine officers, at his own request to be considered solely as a commercial pilot on this trip.

Lindbergh hopped off from Belize at 8 o'clock this morning, Central Standard time.

CONFEREES ON BIG DRY FUND
FAIL TO AGREE

House Representatives
Refused to Accept
$24,000,000 Item

Washington, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The House and Senate conferees on the deficiency appropriation bill failed to agree today on the Senate amendment to provide $24,000,000 for dry law enforcement.

The $24,000,000 item was placed in the bill against the wishes of Secretary Mellon, who argued that a plan for expending it should first be formulated. A move to have the House vote directly upon it failed several days ago.

After today's conference the Senate conferees prepared to return the item to the House for reconsideration.

The majority of the spokesmen for the House refused to consider the increase in funds for enforcement of the dry law. The Senate conferees again demanded that the House be given an opportunity to vote directly on the measure.

Chairman Warren of the Senate Appropriations committee indicated he might go before the Senate again to ask for new instructions but Senate leaders doubted whether any material change could be made in the overwhelming vote by which the increase was first ordered.

The bill in dispute also carries $75,000,000 for tax refunds and $250,000 for a presidential inquiry into prohibition.

Gold Inlay Lodged
in Bronchial Tube

Clinton, Ia., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. L. C. Moeszinger, wife of the head of the Moeszinger-Marquis Hardware Co., while at a luncheon yesterday swallowed the gold inlay of a tooth. An x-ray showed the inlay lodged in the bronchial tube.

She left today with her son-in-law, Dr. F. O. Kershner, for Philadelphia where Dr. M. T. Jackson, only known surgeon to possess instruments for so delicate an operation, will operate.

The cities of Colon and Panama are located at opposite ends of the Panama Canal.

VETO NAVY BILL

Corrects Misapprehension:

Time Limit to Stay

in Measure

BULLETIN

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 5.—(AP)—The Illinois House of Representatives by a unanimous vote today passed a resolution introduced by Rep. Bederman of Chicago memorializing the United States Senate to pass the naval cruisers bill.

Washington, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Although President Coolidge does not approve of the cruiser construction bill with the time restriction clause included, he does not wish to be understood as saying positively that he will veto the measure.

Thinks Merer's Confusion.

The President feels that had the time clause been eliminated the measure could have been passed by the Senate in a few hours, with the result that by now the work of making appropriations for building the ships would be well underway. The time clause would stipulate that the construction of the fifteen cruisers and one aircraft carrier be started before July 1, 1931.

Mr. Coolidge believes that there is some confusion in the minds of Senators over the proposal to take out the time limit. He feels this is regarded as a proposal to postpone construction of the vessels. The Coolidge plan, however, was to eliminate the time restriction, while making appropriations for starting work on a substantial number of the vessels at once.

Supporters of the bill held sway in the Senate today and were set to remain in session until its passage.

Expect Speedy Action.

Little doubt of speedy action remained after decisive rejection of the amendment to eliminate the time-limit clause. Then the Senate was due again to discuss its $24,000,000 prohibition amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill; because conferees of both branches could not agree today on that disputed provision.

Navy matters held the attention of the House also, the $347,000,000 supply bill for that department being considered. It was passed largely in the form it was reported by the Appropriations committee.

LOOP CROWDED, ROBBERS TOOK VICTIM ALONG

Forced Messenger to Go With Them and Took His $900

Chicago, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The loop was a bit too crowded for robbery during the late afternoon rush hour yesterday, and none realized it more than the two gunmen who held up Earl Denny, a messenger.

Denny, with $900 in his wallet, was just about to mount the elevated stairway at Madison street and Wabash avenue when the two men accosted him.

"I don't like this," said one robber to the other, as the stream of shoppers pushed its way along at their elbows. "This is too public for this kind of obnoxiousness."

"You're right," said the other. "But where do you think is a good place for a robbery?"

"I know a good spot," said the other, "over on the other side of the loop. Things are not so busy over there, and we can take our time in robbing this guy."

"Let's go," said the second gunman.

Through the loop they went, robbers and victim, jostled in the crowds.

At Van Buren and Wells street the men directed Denny to a fifth floor washroom, blackjacked him, took the $900, and went away.

DEATH OF WIDOW "INFLUENCED" IN OPINION OF ATTY.

Sensational Disclosures are Expected During Official Inquiry

Chicago, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Drills, explosives are now the grave diggers' spade are being brought into the investigation of Mrs. Selma Burnham's death last week—a death which investigators believe may have been "influenced."

Agents of the State's Attorney and Public Administrator used drills and explosives last night to open a large safe at the Burnham Gum Vending Machine Company, not in quest of assets of the million dollar estate Mrs. Burnham is believed to have possessed at one time, but for more light on her death.

After the safe had been opened, it was reported that "disclosures of a sensational nature" had been made to authorities. Early today it was indicated that the body of Sanford A. Burnham, Mrs. Burnham's husband who died last July, might be exhumed.

Suspect Machine Ring.

Not only are the authorities seeking information that would prove helpful in investigating the woman's death, but they believe they may find evidence of a "slot machine ring." State's Attorney John A. Swanson said he had been advised that the company was a unit of a slot machine organization of wide operations.

Officers said that statements last night of Dr. Frank L. Brown had strengthened the theory that undue influence was brought to bear upon the wealthy widow. Dr. Brown attended Mrs. Burnham shortly before her death.

Drank Liniment.

"She was hysterical when I saw her," he said. "She would continually cry, 'I've lost everything—home, fortune, business. Riley got it all.' She said she had drunk much liquor. I caught the odor of liniment in the room and on her breath. She said she had been given liniment to drink, and that she drank half a bottle of it."

Dr. Brown was ordered to appear next Monday at a Probate Court hearing which has grown out of the affair. So, too, was Edward Riley, civil engineer, who claims Mrs. Burnham turned over to him 55 per cent of her business to him in appreciation, he said, of his efforts as manager of the company.

IMPEACHMENT OF
OHIO TREASURER
STARTED BY GOV.

Convicted Official Refused to Resign After Verdict

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Impeachment proceedings have been started in the Ohio legislature against Bert B. Buckley, State Treasurer, who was convicted in federal court Saturday of attempted bribery and conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

Governor Myers Y. Cooper initiated the legislative action last night after Buckley had refused to accede to the Governor's demand that he resign voluntarily.

Gov. Cooper prepared a message which was read at his opening of last night's session of the House of Representatives, demanding that charges be preferred.

The House unanimously adopted a resolution calling for committee investigation of Buckley's conviction. Speaker O. C. Gray announced appointment of a committee as the first step in the impeachment proceedings. Charges must be voted in the House after which a trial is conducted with the state Senate sitting as a court.

Buckley, who is the first official to face impeachment in Ohio, is free on $10,000 bond pending argument Monday on his appeal from the federal court conviction. He faces a maximum sentence in the federal penitentiary of 28 years and a fine of $27,000.

NORTHWESTERN'S YARD AT NELSON KEPT VERY BUSY

Exceptionally Heavy Business Reported
by Railroad Men

The Northwestern railroad yards at the Nelson freight terminal are experiencing the busiest winter season in many years and probably since their establishment. Hundreds of carloads of freight arrive in Nelson from the west, east and south, are made over into new trains and go on their way each day. It has been stated that no less than 20 crews have left the Nelson yards in a 12 hour period.

One day last week saw 1,700 loaded cars of freight passed through the yards at Nelson. A large amount of this volume of business comes from the south and consists of coal shipments. The new locomotives which have been working for several months on the south division haul average trains of 120 cars into the Nelson yards where the trains are remade and other crews take them either east or west. Many of the employees in the Nelson yards declare that the volume of business being handled at the present time is exceptional for this period of the year.

Because of the snow, ice and severe cold through the month of January the section crews in Nelson were kept busy day and night clearing out switches and keeping the tracks open for the trains. Many of the section men slept only a few hours in one week, working in relays to keep the big yards open to prevent a congestion of the handling of the trains.

BANKERS, UNDER
$724,000 BONDS,
SEEKING RELIEF

Kewanee Men, Held in Jail, Appeal to Ill.
Supreme Court

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Charging that prosecuting officers deliberately obtained duplicate indictments with the hope of making them languish in jail under a prohibitive bail of $724,000, William E. Gould and Sam D. Burge, Kewanee bankers, today petitioned the Supreme Court for a writ of habeas corpus. Supreme Court attaches said the bail is the highest ever to be considered in the Illinois high court.

The petition says that accused bankers already have furnished bail totalling $133,000, which still is in force, although they are held in the Henry county jail. They are unable to furnish the new high bond, set by Circuit Judge Leonard E. Keelen, and offer to furnish bail of $60,000.

Indicted Many Times

Burge and Gould operated the Savings Bank of Kewanee, which was closed by the State Auditor in the later part of 1927. In March, 1924, the petition says, they were indicted thirty-two times and furnished $64,000 in bail, each.

While the court considered a motion to quash the indictments, thirty-one new and duplicate indictments were returned by a grand jury, and the bankers furnished a new bail of $67,000. Later the court sustained the motion to quash the first indictment.

Then, states the petition, Gould and Burge were arrested in September, 1928, on thirty-one complaints which again were duplicates of the indictments. Bail this time was set at $66,000 and furnished in addition to the old bail.

Offer $60,000 Bail

On January 7, this year, a grand jury returned one hundred and ninety-five separate indictments against the men, one hundred and one for receiving deposits while the bank was insolvent, fifty-seven for obtaining money by means of a confidence game, fifteen for embezzlement and twenty-two for forgery. On each of the one hundred and one indictments bail was fixed at $2,000; the same amount was fixed for the fifty-seven and the remainder was fixed at $3,000 each.

Reciting their inability to furnish $724,000 bail the petition states that the offered $60,000 bail will be furnished by Garnett Butterwicks, Elsie A. Beadle, Myron Jordan, Cecelia Jordan and Joseph P. Kelly, all of Kewanee. The bankers are represented in the Supreme Court action by Attorney S. R. Kenworthy.

AVIATORS SEEKING RECORD NON-STOP FLIGHT ACROSS AMERICAN CONTINENT TODAY

Captain Hawks and Mechanic are Not Heard from on Flight

BULLETIN

Curtiss Field, N. Y., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Captain Frank M. Hawks arrived at 2:59:29 o'clock this afternoon after a nonstop flight from Los Angeles to New York.

Los Angeles, Feb. 5.—(AP)—That seldom-realized project of aviation, a non-stop flight from coast to coast, was the goal today of Captain Frank M. Hawks of Houston, Tex., who hopes to shatter the transcontinental record in a flight from Los Angeles to New York.

Accompanied by Oscar E. Grubb, a mechanic, Captain Hawks hopped from Metropolitan airport at 5:37 p. m., yesterday, and presumably was far out over the central plains this morning. He hopes to land at Roosevelt or Curtis Field, Long Island, before noon today, thus clipping more than three hours from the record held by Col. Arthur Goebel and the ill-fated Yankee Doodle.

Captain Hawks must reach New York before 3:35 p. m. to break Goebel's record of 18 hours, 59 minutes, which Goebel set last August 19-20. The Dole flight winner, now making plans for a refueling non-stop flight around the world, carried the late Harry Tucker of Santa Monica, Cal., with him as a passenger in his lightning trip across the United States.

The southern course chosen by the aviator would take him over Plainview and Childress, Texas; Muskogee, Okla.; Van Buren, Mo.; Parker, Ill.; Louisville, Ky.; Portsmouth, O.; Morgantown, W. Va.; and Harpersburg, and ending, Pa. It was regarded as unlikely that his ship would be sighted until it neared the goal, as transcontinental pilots usually select high altitudes and favoring winds.

HOOVER TO SEE
EVIDENCE LEFT
BY HURRICANE

Will Visit Okeechobee
District, Florida,
Next Week

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 5.—(AP)—President-elect Hoover will find on his visit to the Okeechobee District next week plenty of evidences of the devastation created in that section by the 1928 hurricane.

Roads which were washed out then still are in bad shape and the going may be had for the cavalcade of automobiles which will be placed at the disposal of the President-elect and his party by the state. The greatest loss of life in the 1928 storm—and the estimate of the total exceeded two thousand—occurred in the towns of Pahokee, Chosen and Belle Glade, on the southeastern side of the lake, when the swelling waters carried away the levees which it is now planned shall be replaced with types calculated to hold against floods.

No doubt most of the country through which Mr. Hoover will pass will take him back to his early engineering days. It is boggy in places, in others only fields of saw grass are to be found, and some portions are sandy.

One of the plans now under consideration for alleviating the existing dangerous condition to the south of Lake Okeechobee is a drainage and navigation canal running from the lake into the Caloosahatchee river with the improvement of that river down to the present head of navigation above Fort Myers.

He had only a single caller on the list for today, Mrs. Bertha D. Bauer of Chicago, Republican National Committeewoman for Illinois.

Great Rush to Buy
Standard Oil Stocks

New York, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The New York stock market was thrown into such a tumult by a rush to buy the common stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana today that the first trading was not straightened out until after 1 o'clock, when a sale of 70,000 shares at $109.25 a share, an overnight gain of $4.25, was finally arranged. The feverish demand for the issue resulted from the declaration yesterday of a 50 per cent stock and an extra cash dividend.

The stock mounted yesterday to $96, a gain of $3 for the day. It has recently sold on the curb as high as $103, which gave rise to reports that Rockefeller and Stewart interests were contesting for control of the company in the open market. The stock sold as high as $107 a share on the Chicago Stock Exchange today.

The severed cable struck him, cutting the right leg in several places and he also suffered lacerations about the body. He was taken to the Dixon public hospital, where he was given treatment. He was taken home this morning and it was reported that he was resting quite comfortably today.

South Central's Hold

Lead in Jr. League

The North Central grade school basketball team won its second game in the Y. M. C. A. Grade School League last Thursday, when they defeated the St. Mary's 27 to 1. Good team-work marked the style of the Northstars play, while most of them lost head and shoulders over the St. Mary's in height. Teer and Miller did the heavy scoring for the North Central team, while Henry and Smith of the St. Mary's gave the Northstars plenty to worry about.

The South Central team won an easy game from the Loveland team by a score of 21 to 2. Here again the size of the players was a great factor in the game. Also, the South Central boys have had more practice than the Loveland team. The Loveland boys are improving in their style of play and will surprise the fans some of these days.

Team standings as follows:

South Central 1,000

North Central 667

E. C. Smith 500

St. Mary's 000

Loveland 000

PATRIOTISM IN POETRY—

(From the Christian Science Monitor)

TEN American poets have received equal shares in the preliminary prize of the national anthem competition sponsored by Florence Brooks-Aten of New York; and ten poems which presumably reflect the highest patriotic sentiment of the citizenry of the United States are destined, in the nature of things, to be widely quoted.

It is almost axiomatic that, even as a man is known by the company he keeps, a nation is judged by the songs it sings. The United States, therefore, is to be congratulated on having fostered an idealism, expressed by these makers of song, which transcends the familiar war figure so pervasive in many national anthems and which conceives of a patriotism so broad as to embrace in its sentiment a friendly hand held out to all the world.

Whether any of the poems will be generally adopted as a national anthem cannot, at the present, be foretold. Even should none of them gain a place in the country's hymnology, the significance of the remarkable unity of sentiment favorable to the brotherhood of man discernible in most of them should be of great encouragement to those contributing to the movement universally peaceward.

Whatever the nation voicing it, there is much to be expected of a patriotism which is broad enough to proclaim—as winners in the anthem contest have proclaimed—that:

All races here in friendship meet
And here united plan
On justice and good will to build
The Commonwealth of Man;
Which is forward-looking enough to sing of its flag.

A song for thy stars when the bugles are blowing
The peace of the world; and which is Christian enough to accept as a national precept.

Freedom, we through your gate
To mold a friendly fate,
To mold the Brother State
That God has willed.

MENU for the FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY
Breakfast—Stewed figs, cereal, cream, creamed beef on toast, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Scalloped ham and celery, lettuce and whole wheat sandwiches, canned strawberries, coconut cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Salt codfish pie, buttered beets, cottage cheese, baked apple dumplings, milk, coffee.

Scalloped Ham and Celery
One cup finely chopped cooked ham, 1 cup diced parboiled celery, 1 cup grated cheese, 1 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons milk, 1/2 cup flour, 1 1/2 cups milk, 1/4 teaspoon salt.

Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point and add salt. Put alternate layers of ham, celery and sauce into a well-buttered baking dish, making the last layer of sauce. Cover with cheese and sprinkle with paprika. Put into a moderately hot oven to heat thoroughly and melt the cheese. Serve from baking dish.

This is an excellent way to use up scraps of ham and the coarse outer stalks of celery.

Says Mrs. Henry Ford To Mrs. Frank Allen

Boston, Feb. 5.—(AP)—When Mrs. Frank G. Allen, wife of the Governor, next is called upon to confront cameramen, she will have the advantage of the advice of two famous women to help her decide the most effective way to pose.

Mrs. Allen was acting as a saleswoman at the Back Bay Shop of the Massachusetts Farm & Garden Association. Her customer was Mrs. Henry Ford, president of the National Association, who was intent on picking up some articles for the North American flower show to be held in Detroit next March.

Presently photographers arrived and the two women consented to pose, but not at the counter where they had been standing. Instead, Mrs. Ford led Mrs. Allen to the rear of the place.

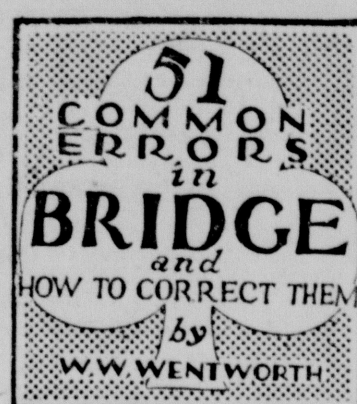

"Keep them quite a distance away," she confided to the Governor's wife. "It is better if they don't bring their cameras too close. I learned that from Mrs. Hoover. One day I was with her and she kept making the cameramen go back. She said she wouldn't pose unless they did."

Mr. Ford came from Detroit with his wife, but remained secluded at Wayside Inn, Sudbury. He declined to say whether he would visit President-elect Hoover while enroute to the Ford winter place at Fort Myers, Fla.

Mrs. Ommen Guest Of Honor at Party

Mrs. Lester Ommen was the guest of honor at a delightful party given for her Friday evening by some of her friends at her home in N. Dixon.

The Bidding: South bids one heart. West bids one spade. North bids two hearts and all pass.

Deciding the Play: West leads king of spades and declarer takes trick with ace of spades. How should declarer plan to play to insure game?

The Error: Declarer leads 2 of spades and ruffs it in the dummy. Then king of clubs is led.

The Correct Method: Declarer endeavors to establish his club suit by playing 2 of clubs and finessing queen of clubs. Assume this trick is won by east, finesse failing. No matter what suit east may play, declarer eventually wins the lead and plays 2 of clubs to king of clubs. The third club is ruffed by declarer so that the clubs are established. Trumps are then drawn and game is assured.

The Principle: When holding any seven cards in combined hands with tops as good as king and queen, the probability is that the suit can be established on the third round.

The entire evening provided one of much enjoyment to all in attendance and on departing at a late hour Mrs. Ommen received a very beautiful gift and the best wishes of everyone for happy returns of the day.

APPLE RIVER CANYON THE SWITZERLAND OF AMERICA

A special meeting of the thirtieth congressional district of Women's clubs has launched a crusade to make Apple River canyon a state park in order that its beauty may be preserved. The following description of the canyon was prepared by Miss Zoe Lenore Gray of Warren, Ill., conservation chairman of the thirtieth district women. Mrs. Joseph Rae of Polo is the chairman of a special Apple River canyon crusade committee. The canyon is located in Jo Daviess county on state route 5.

Miss Gray is to broadcast from station WBBM, Chicago, Monday, Feb. 11, at 1:30 p. m.

What the Alps are to Europe, Apple River canyon is to Illinois. Beautiful, wild, romantic Apple River canyon, the Switzerland of this great commonwealth.

Old mother nature is a thrifty housewife. She sets in order the most beautiful, awe inspiring, great outdoors for the haunts of bug, bird and beast and the admiration and pleasure of man.

The gateway to this wild paradise is through picturesque, old historic Millville, five miles southwest of Warren and seven miles north of Stockton. It was the hub of the mining district for that section and was a village of a few hundred inhabitants. In the early days there were several stores, a hotel, the ever-present saloon, and the grist mill to which the inhabitants for miles and miles around brought their wheat to be ground into snow white flour. The old process of grinding was used, namely: two flat stones and the power was nature's waterwheel.

The Stage Coach Days.
Frink and Walker's stage line from Chicago to Galena ran through the town and mail for all that section was obtained at the village postoffice. The early settlers of Warren went there for their mail and to cast their votes, but this was all changed when the Illinois Central railroad went through five miles to the north.

There is nothing left now but a bronze tablet to tell the story of its thrilling memories of brawling miners and of the stage coach as it came and went in a cloud of dust, while the inhabitants watched the stage driver and his six galloping horses rise and disappear over the high plateaus. Millville and the stage coach have passed together, leaving behind them the imperishable beauty and glory of the canyon.

The glacier did not touch this spot, but it did dam up Apple river until it was forced to turn and cut its way through five miles of solid rock and left about 1,000 acres of the wildest, roughest and most picturesque lands in Illinois lying along the river.

250 Feet Deep.
The canyon is a chasm cut out through limestone rock to a depth of 250 feet with a bottom width of 150 feet. The walls on either side of the canyon are beautifully colored with the brown, red and black of their minerals, and the hazy mauves of the lichens that cling to the sides. Their tops are often rugged and sculptured and assuming fanciful shapes—there is steamboat rock, table rock, castle rock, robbers cave and many others. Some cliffs are topped with heavy forests and there are some white pines scattered here and there.

Many caverns, isolated towers, rock masses and huge blocks break the line through the canyon; many little streams trickle down a steep incline into the river below. In winter these abrupt streams become frozen waterfalls, and they drape the walls with the beautiful crystal bridal veils. At Overhanging rock the sun has never shown and often in June the ice still covers the rocky bed.

Botanists' Paradise.
Springs, seepages, side ravines and miniature canyons are everywhere and all abound in rich and diversified wild flowers. Some 60 species of forest trees and a thousand species of plants, herbs and flowers of rare types add charm to this region making it a veritable botanist's paradise.

As preserve for fish and birds it is ideal. As is now is, Apple river is one of the finest small mouth bass streams in Illinois and certain kinds of trout would thrive well in its cool, shady depths. The fisherman, picker or camper finds an ideal recreation ground, second to none in the state. Besides, there is a wonderful park affording camp sites, with natural stove of solid rock on which to cook food, and an abundance of wood supply for fuel. There is the old swimmin' hole here, too, and clear shallow wading places for children. For the tourist who likes a beautiful and secluded spot for weekend tramping this canyon is his happy hunting ground.

Bird Life Alluring.
For bird life this quiet haven is alluring. It is protected in winter from the fierce cold winds and the springs of fresh water give our feathered friends drink while seed and fruit plants offer food. Here may be seen the jack snipe and the wax wings, also cardinals flash their gorgeous red wings; the pine siskins daintily twitter echoes in the rocks, whilst across the gorge a long-eared owl hoots and a flock of roosting crows defies the blast.

The high cliffs, rising on either side, are all stratified, and full of many narrow shelves and ledges, and covered with scanty soil, yet there grows here the most wonderful, brilliant flowers, stunted junipers and even large trees. The cliff called primrose rock has its great perpendicular surface fairly papered with what are said to be the only wild primroses in the state.

The wolf, the fox, the mink, the raccoon, the skunk, the weasel, and many of the weaker forest folk find homes, food and shelter in this natural paradise. The crowning point will be when all these charms and treasures of water, rock, trees, flowers, beast and bird are taken under the protected care of the state of Illinois, and conserved and preserved for generations to come.

Haunts of Redmen.
Historically, this was once the resort of the troublesome Sauk Indians. Many arrows, spear heads, hatchets and other flint found here tell the story of this vale, hill, forest and glade when held by the red man of long ago.

Toward the end of the canyon the scenery begins to quiet down. The cliffs are much less abrupt and the gorge finally merges into hilly banks as the river flows on toward the Mississippi.

Rasputin was known as the "Mad Monk of Russia."

DETROIT'S ACCIDENT CAMPAIGN.

The way in which traffic fatalities can be materially cut down if police and court authorities really put their minds to it is evidenced by what has been done in Detroit.

At the beginning of 1928, Detroit launched an intensive campaign to reduce accidents. It put on extra police, had motorcycle officers patrol all streets regularly, did away with light sentences in the courts and, with the backing of the newspapers, tried to educate driver and pedestrian to the importance of what was being tried.

The result? Detroit's traffic deaths in 1928 were 20 per cent under the total in 1927. Yet in the nation as a whole the total was two per cent higher than in preceding year.

It takes effort and it costs money, of course. But our traffic casualty list is a shame, and any remedy that produces results is a good one. Other cities might do well to copy Detroit.

BENNETT HARBOR.

It is good to read that Commander Byrd has named a harbor which he discovered in the Antarctic continent after Floyd Bennett, the man who flew with him to the North Pole.

But for the self-sacrifice and bravery that led him to try to fly to the relief of the Bremen flyers when he was in the first stages of pneumonia, Bennett would today be Byrd's right-hand man in the Antarctic. Serving his fellow men at no thought of the cost to himself, he lost his life and his place had to be filled by another. But Byrd, it seems, has not forgotten him.

Bennett's name will get the kind of immortality that explorers' names get—a space in the corner of a map. That, we believe, is as he would have had it.

THE THIN RANKS.

Veterans of the Civil War are rapidly diminishing in numbers. In a very few years there will not be left one man who can actually remember the incidents of that terrible struggle.

The Department of the Interior has revealed that the pension roll of Civil War veterans has shrunk to 68,788—6000 lower than it was six months ago, thus indicating that the veterans are dying at the rate of more than 1000 a month.

At that rate, in six years the last of the veterans will be gone. Much the same rate of mortality, probably, applies to the Confederate veterans. Of course, there will be a few exceptions—tough, hardy men of unusual longevity, who will linger on for years after their comrades have gone.

But the ranks are thinning fast. It is a tragedy. The gallant old fighters, north and south, served well and bravely. The country will be much poorer when none of them survives.

A MATTER OF RED TAPE.

If the new government at Washington can remove a little of the stupid red tape that entangles the matter of immigration and naturalization, it will be doing the country a real service.

A Kansas City woman is going to visit England, accompanied by her three-year-old son. She was born abroad, and although her husband is an American, she is classified as a foreigner—and consequently had to get various kinds of official papers to enable her to re-enter the country when her trip to England expires.

But that isn't the funny part of it all. Her infant son, born in this county, is an American citizen, even if she isn't. So when the two board the liner for England, he must go aboard by one gangplank and she must use another one. Come who may, the majesty (and idiocy) of the law will be up held.

A headline in the Chicago Daily Tribune says "Chicago Gets More Police." Evidently some of the police have been growing careless.

The Chicago sanitary district spent more than $1,000,000 to build a bridge path. The citizens ought to be able to bridle over that.

George Bernard Shaw's new play is called "The Apple Cart," but it probably will turn out that he's giving somebody the raspberry again.

The constitution is mankind's greatest document, with the possible exception of the receipt for the last payment on the family fivver.

The bear that came out from the trees just wobbled round a while with ease. It looked real clumsy with its body swinging to and fro. Each Trouble Tot and Thymite kept very quiet, out of sight. Just what was going to happen next of course they did not know.

Soon Clowny whispered, "Seems to me that he's as tame as he can be. Let's run right out and play with him. Perhaps he'll be real kind." Just then, however, "Mister Bear began to jump and roll and tear. And when he roared aloud it made poor Clowny change his mind.

"Oh, no!" he whispered. "Don't run out. I really haven't any doubt that we would all be chewed right up. We're safer where we are. No doubt the bear will soon go 'way, and if he does I hope he'll stay. Whatever place he's heading for I hope it's good and far."

By this time Scouty got a hunch, which he explained to all the bunch. "I have a rope which we can throw across the ground," said he. Then Clowny said, "All right, you stay right here and I'll skip 'cross the way. When I'm behind that big oak tree, you throw the rope to me."

When Mister Bear was turned around we Clowny sneaked across the ground, and hid behind the mon-

Sunshine School is Health Builder

By PHILLIP S. POTTER, M. D.
Berkeley, California

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Institute are at 1331 G Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

The Sunshine School was established as an integral part of the public school system of Berkeley for the purpose of caring for the tired-out, pale, nervous and undernourished children for whom the regular school curriculum would be harmful. It was also for those children who at some time or other had been in immediate contact with a tuberculous member of the family, and because of their condition furnished fruitful soil for the development of the germ in their own bodies.

The school is not a separate school, for these children should not be considered "sick" children and segregated. Their quarters are located on the first floor in one wing of a regular school and consist of class rooms and two sleeping rooms furnished with 60 beds, for these children must have two sleep periods of an hour each. In addition they have one rest hour on the sun platform in the school yard where the sun baths are graduated to the individual child by the two city nurses detailed to the school. The sun platform is so divided that the boys occupy one side and the girls the other.

Only children of the first six grades are eligible, and the school is ungraded. Three teachers are in charge of the school work, while the physician and the two nurses watch over the children's health progress. They send home all contagious diseases, for this is no place for a contagious disease to get a foothold.

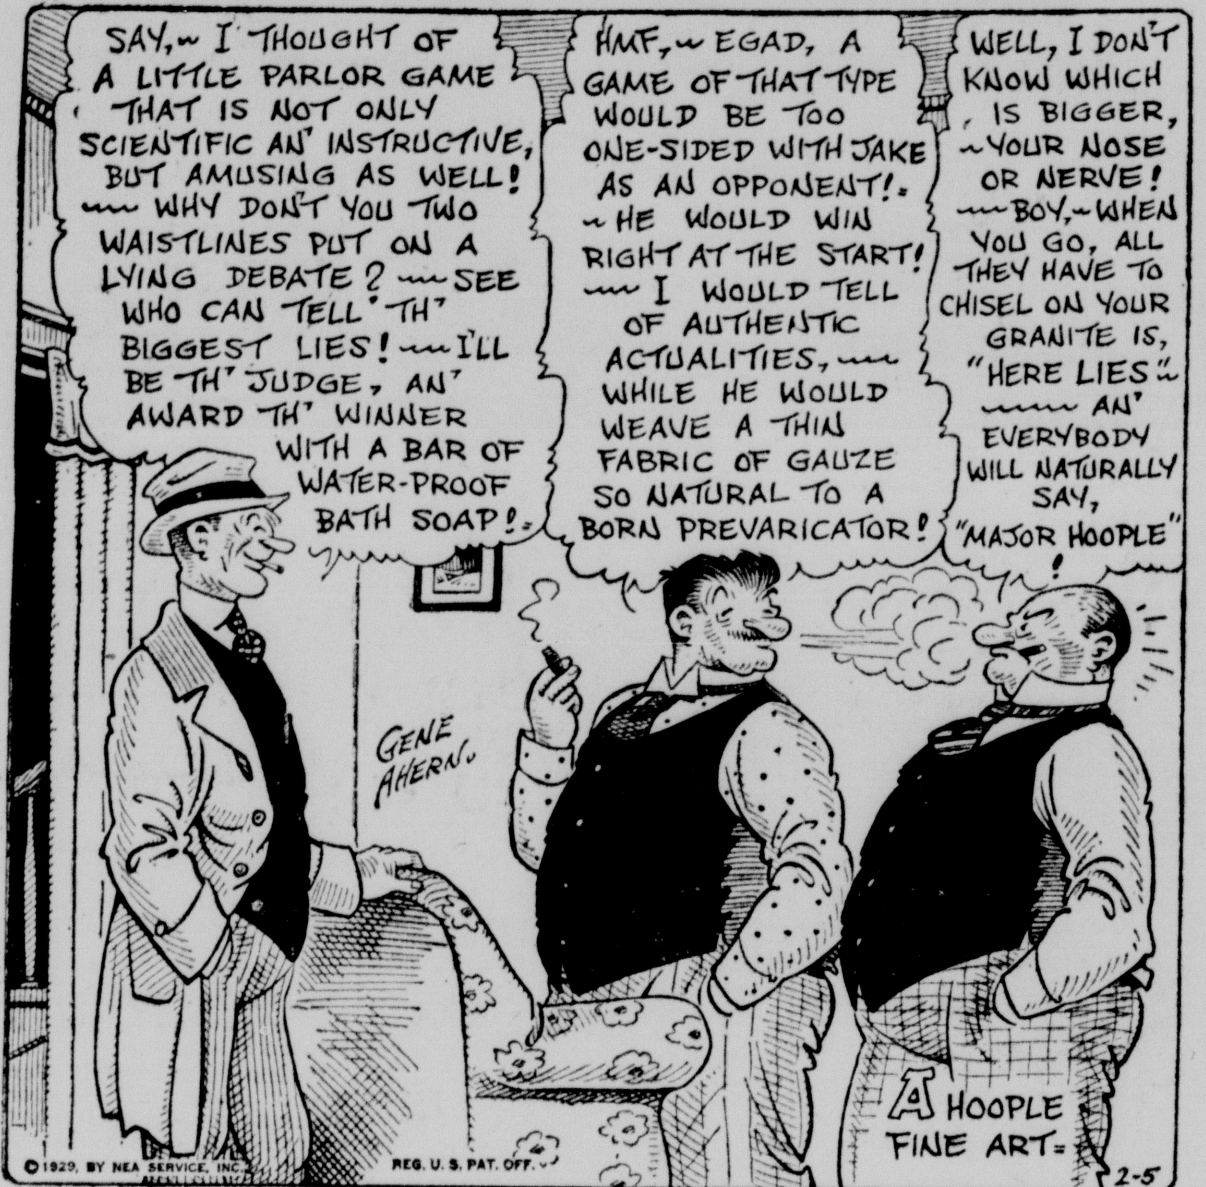

During the school day a pint of orange juice is given to each child in the morning previous to going on the sun platform. At noon a properly balanced lunch is furnished, and at 3:30 in the afternoon a glass of milk and two graham crackers.

Nearly all of the children have averaged a ten pound gain during the school year of ten months. Those who have gained but little in weight have been absent from school attendance. The children have become as smooth as velvet, the muscles firm and the appetite increased, many calling for "seconds" at the lunch hour. The pinched look is gone, the eyes are bright and the children are so full of vigor that it is difficult to hold them down in their games at play time.

Another advantage of this school is the opportunity of teaching public health to the parents. Not infrequently do they come to the school to consult with the physician on their health problems. When the child's health chart shows a poor progress, the nurse goes into the home. After her visit generally the weight line begins to ascend.

This type of school is a benefit to the children and the community, and should be in every city where climatic conditions permit it.

SUPREME COURT MET TODAY FOR FEBRUARY TERM

Appeal of Chicago Mayor is Most Important
Case Docketed

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 5.—(AP)—With less than 225 cases on the docket and the civil and criminal dockets comparatively light, the Supreme court convened for its February term here today.

The highlight of the session is expected to be the oral arguments in the suit successfully prosecuted by the Chicago Tribune against Mayor William Hale Thompson in which the lower court held the mayor liable for more than one and one-half million dollars, excess fees paid to real estate experts engaged in working out the "City Beautiful" plan.

Oral arguments are scheduled for Thursday, February 14. Mayor Thompson's suit is virtually the only case of wide interest. It is on the civil docket and no decision may be expected at this time.

A host of minor questions are presented on the docket. Decisions in which may be expected about February 19 when the court adjourns. These cases include:

Many Minor Cases
Disbarment proceedings against William W. McCallum, alleged prosecutor of fake "accident" damage suits. McCallum's denouncement created a sensation. His client, supposed to have been crippled in a railroad wreck, threw away his crutches in the court room and revealed himself an investigator for the railroad.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Washington thermometers registered 17 above this morning.

Francis J. Young, formerly a resident of Ogle county, and in his day a factor in political manipulations of his community, was my lunch guest several days ago. Mr. Young has lived in Washington more than thirty years and for years was an employee of the Treasury Department.

The Chicago election judges case, an appeal by several persons who acted as officials of an election in Cook county and were convicted of contempt of court for "misbehavior" at the polls. The mooted question is whether an election official is an officer of the county court and thus subject to a contempt of court charge. The case was once decided by the Supreme court, against the election officials, but they won a rehearing. Meanwhile an attempt to change the contempt of court law is being made in the legislature where a bill has been introduced giving jury trials to persons charged with contempt of court.

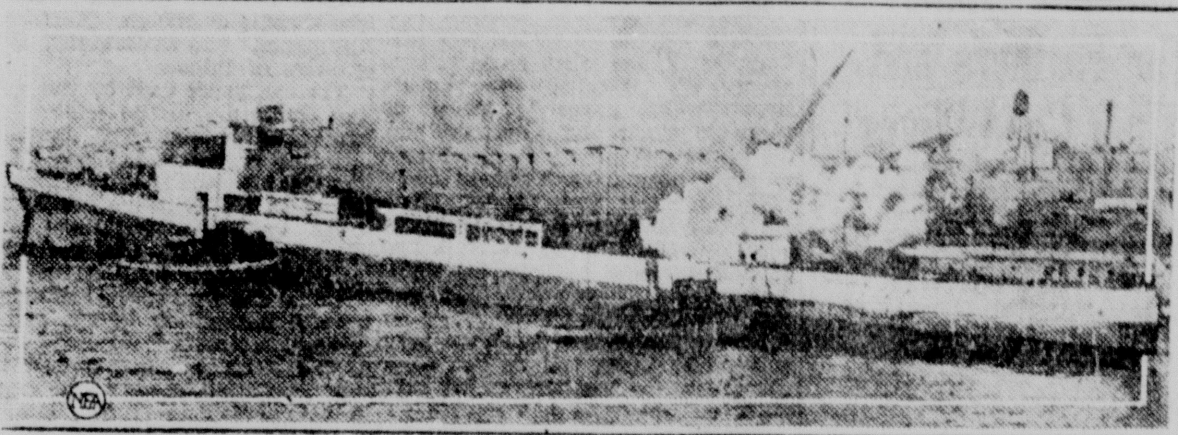

"Death Bed" Case
The "death bed accusation" case appealed from Williamson county, in which Cliff Hatcher and Curley Drummitt were convicted of the murder of Jake Caccabando on the strength of his death bed testimony, may be decided.

James A. Mead's attack upon the methods followed by the tax commission in assessing the capital stock of corporations is before the court. Meade, described in his petition as "a citizen of Chicago" named forty-four corporations which he said had a capital stock of $249,772,529, and which were assessed on the basis of a $39,084,890 valuation by the tax commission.

Whether a cemetery association may prohibit the erection of government markers on graves of soldiers and sailors is a question presented in an appeal by the trustees of Rosehill cemetery of Cook county. A state law is also in question, one passed by the 55th general assembly which forbids cemetery associations from banning the government markers.

Attempts of Eugene "Red" McLaughlin, of Chicago, reputed gunman, to escape serving sentence on a charge of an attempted jewelry robbery is due for a decision. McLaughlin was convicted of trying to take $50,000 in jewelry from a salesman in daylight robbery.

Launching of First Arms Treaty Cruiser

Airplane motors hummed overhead, whistles shrieked, a crowd of 10,000 cheered—and the U. S. S. Salt Lake City, first cruiser built under the limitations of the 1922 armament conference treaty, slid down the ways into the Delaware river at Camden, N. J. The 100,000-ton cruiser is pictured below immediately after the launching. Officials who took part in the ceremonies are shown at the top, left to right: Senator Smoot of Utah; Miss Gailey Rich, maid-of-honor to Miss Helen Budge of Salt Lake City, next, who christened the cruiser; Gay Hill of Salt Lake City; Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur, and Mayor J. H. Bowman of Salt Lake City.

has made a splendid record as a soldier in the Civil War. Many of the prominent men of Ogle county remember well Francis J. Young. He is a native of Pennsylvania and went to Ogle county when quite a young man. Mr. Young is retired. He writes interesting letters for the Ogle County Republican.

Another retired Civil Service employee is Stephen Mason of Ogle county. Mr. Mason served his country as a government clerk for a good many years. He came to Washington when a young man. He has been active in politics for years. He is a highly educated man and an expert accountant. Mr. Mason writes weekly letters for the Ogle County Republican.

We are having our winter weather. For the past several days the thermometer registered around 15 above zero. There is some ice and some of the young people are skating down on the Potomac Basin. Snow has been scarce.

An enterprising reporter on the Washington Star went down to the Zoo early today (Feb. 2) and hauled Mr. Groundhog out of his rock burrow by the scruff of the neck and took a picture of him. He saw his shadow and rushed back into his burrow. Six weeks more winter weather.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, recently elected to Congress, will be the guest of honor at the next monthly luncheon of the Quartermasters Association at the Carlton Hotel, Tuesday afternoon.

Funeral services for Charles J. Gates, formerly cashier of the United States Treasury, who died at his home here last Friday, were held Monday afternoon at the National Baptist Church. He was buried in Greenwood Cemetery. Mr. Gates, who was 69 years old, was born in Dixon, Illinois. He came to Washington in 1893 at which time he entered the Treasury Department.

Seventeen years ago he was appointed chief of the redemption division, and in 1925 was named cashier. He was retired because of illness September 1, 1927. Mr. Gates was a graduate of Georgetown University Law School and a member of the Washington bar. He was a charter member of the National Baptist Church. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ella Gates, and two sons, Albert W. Gates of Washington, D. C., and Edward P. Gates of Boston.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon paid tribute to Mr. Gates' 37 years of service in the Treasury Department shortly before he was retired.

declaring that Mr. Gates had shown unusual ability in each of the supervisory services he had rendered. (Washington Post).

Some ten years ago the late Henry S. Dixon, "Bud" Preston, now of Denver, Colo., and the writer of "Washington Gossip" stood on the deck of a tug boat in New York harbor and watched the U. S. S. America come slowly into the harbor with the Dixon soldiers aboard, returning from France. It was a sight I shall never forget. Col. Frank O. Lowden, then governor of Illinois, and Mrs. Lowden, were also aboard the tug. Many brave men wept with joy at the sight of the "home boys" returning. Bands played, whistles shrieked, and cheers from hundreds of onlookers rent the air. Today I saw Captain George Fried and Mrs. Fried, at the capitol, shaking hands with members of Congress. Captain was the guest of Washington for three days. Captain Fried is commander of the liner America, and the hero of the sea whose rescues have brought him world renown, and whose latest exploit was the saving of the crew of the sinking Italian steamer Florida. I am wondering if Captain Fried was in command of the America when our "boys" returned on her from the war fields? The "boys" now in Dixon can answer that question.

The Washington Star says that the trustees of Jefferson Avenue Christian Church of Danville, Va., have obtained permission from the judge of the Corporation Court to mortgage the church for $1,150 in order to pay the salary of the church's former pastor, Rev. Leslie L. Bowers. The congregation recently dismissed Rev. Bowers following his action in swearing out civil warrants against the financial trustees to collect $200 claimed as back salary. Afterward it was recognized that under an agreement with him the church must give him 90 days' notice. In Virginia church property cannot be mortgaged without sanction of the court.

President Coolidge has signed the bill authorizing the Secretary of War to lend War Department equipment for use at the eleventh national convention of the American Legion.

Tolls on the commercial vessels passing through the Panama Canal for the past six months, and fifteen days in January, 1929, total $14,666,332.62.

In connection with the above item concerning Panama Canal tolls I wish to say that from reliable authority, I find that it costs $3060 to ship a carload of first class freight from Chicago to San Francisco and only $1200 from Baltimore to San Francisco. A second class carload from Chicago costs $2658 to San Francisco, from Baltimore $1050. The rate on third class is $2205 compared with $900; fourth class, $1866 compared with $750; fifth class, $1583 compared with $600, notwithstanding the fact that it is 6040 miles from Baltimore to San Francisco and only 2770 miles by rail from Chicago to San Francisco. It is much cheaper to ship his goods by rail to an eastern port then thence to the western coast than it is to ship by the direct rail route. It costs $768 to ship a carload of canned goods from Chicago to San Francisco and only $210 to ship from Baltimore to San Francisco by water route. The Panama Canal business is growing at the expense of Illinois and other middle western manufacturers. Its 1928 net revenue exceeded that of any preceding year by nearly $3,000,000. Its annual business is increasing so rapidly that there is a movement to reduce the tolls and a survey has been ordered for a second canal to be constructed across the Isthmus of Nicaragua.

The following information is taken from the Monthly Labor Review, issued by the Department of Labor. The number of immigrant aliens entering this country from July 1 to Oct. 31, 1928, was 104,545, an average of 26,136 a month. Nearly 90 per cent of the arrivals by water came in at New York. 52,486 immigrants being admitted at that port during the four months and 6,963 at the other seaports. 45,097 entered over the international land borders, 28,086 from Canada and 19,011 from Mexico. Over one-half of the immigrants for the four months settled in the North Atlantic states. New York receiving by far the largest number. Texas was second in the list. About one out of every six of the immigrant aliens admitted during the four months was a skilled worker and about one out of every nine gave his occupation as that of common laborer. The number recorded as skilled workers was 16,618 and as common laborer 11,478, while 10,657 were servants, 5424 were in the professional or commercial class, 3149 were farmers, 7360 were farm laborers, and 2226 of the miscellaneous classes. The immigrants for the said four months were about equally divided by sex, 52,620 males and 51,925 females; 18,786 were children under 16 years of age and 25,553 were from 16 to 21 years, while the largest group, or 50,883, ranged in age from 22 to 44 years and 9321 were 45 years of age and over. As to the conjugal condition of these immigrants, 67,144 were recorded as single, 33,765 as married, and 3636 as widowed or divorced.

From the Annual Report of the Secretary of the Navy I get the following information concerning the Virgin Islands:

In 1917 when the islands were acquired by the United States government, the population was 26,051; in 1927 it was 20,728. The islanders have migrated to a great extent to the United States.

The death rate per thousand in 1917 was 41.5; in 1927 it was 22.3. The principal items produced in the Virgin Islands are sugar in St. Croix; alcohol in St. Croix; and bay rum in St. Thomas, with a minor bay-oil industry in St. John. The cattle industry in the island of St. Croix is making remarkable strides since the transfer of the islands. Bay rum is exported for about $1 per gallon; the last sugar shipment from St. Croix sold for about 4½ cents per pound; cattle on the hoof is sold for about 7 cents per pound. During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1928, 91,628 gallons of bay rum produced in the island of St. Thomas were sold and exported. 145,296 gallons of alcohol were produced in St. Croix during the same year. Approximately 16,000 tons of sugar were exported from St. Croix during the same period. During the previous fiscal year (1927) 746 head of cattle were exported from St. Thomas and 1263 from St. Croix.

The Virgin Islands are not self-supporting, the deficits being made up from congressional appropriation.

With a population in 1918 of about 26,000, there were 2377 children in public schools and 80 teachers; in 1927, with a population of about 5000 less, there were 2919 children in the public schools and 116 teachers. The governor hopes to establish, during the coming year, a summer school for the teachers in the public schools of the Virgin Islands.

Scarcity of water is the most conspicuous natural deficiency in the Virgin Islands. It is believed that more vegetables have been grown in St. Thomas during the past year than in any year since the American occupation.

Chief officer Harry Manning says: "Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet."

"WHEN I climbed aboard the 'America' after those cold, strenuous hours getting the men off the freighter 'Florida,' there was nothing I wanted so much as a Lucky—'By George,' it tasted wonderful! A Lucky is always refreshing. My tense nerves relaxed, my aching throat was soothed and the whole thrilling adventure just seemed a part of the day's work. As time goes by, and I look back to that memorable night, I'll always remember the wonderful taste of that welcome Lucky. As I went around to visit the men we'd rescued, I found many of them enjoying Luckies, too. We really couldn't wait to get back to our ship and 'Luckies.' As an actual fact in returning to the 'America' I noticed one of our men* rowing with one hand and lighting a 'Lucky' with the other. There's no flavor to equal toasted tobaccos, and I always prefer Lucky Strikes. There's wisdom in the saying: 'Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.' It helps a man to keep physically fit and we who follow the sea must always be prepared for any emergency."

LIVESTOCK ON ILLINOIS FARMS WORTH BIG SUM

It Had a Total Value of $14,000,000 More
Than Year Ago

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 5.—(AP)—An increase in the number of sheep on Illinois farms, no change in the total number of all cattle and decreased numbers of hogs, milk cows, horses and mules were reported in the January 1 joint livestock survey of the Illinois and Federal Departments of agriculture, issued here today. An unusual feature of the livestock report this year is the fact that the average value per head for all classes of livestock are higher than a year ago. The total value of all classes of livestock on farms in the state is about $14,000,000 more than on January 1, 1928 and totals $294,760,000 compared with $270,760,000 a year ago and $233,533,000 on January 1, 1927.

This survey of Illinois livestock on farms January 1, 1929 shows five per cent increase in sheep numbers and reductions of four per cent for horses and mules and nine per cent for hogs. The number of all cattle is reported to be the same as a year ago. A decrease of two per cent in the number of milk cows is offset by a two per cent increase in the number of other cattle.

An encouraging feature of the report is the fact that all cattle numbers have been maintained after a steady annual decline for the past seven years. The decrease of two per cent in the number of milk cows is largely due to the active T. B. eradication work combined with rather close culling out of unprofitable milk producing cows during the year. The number of all cattle on Illinois farms, January 1, is estimated at 1,979,900 head or the same as that of a year ago. This compares with 2,161,000 head on Illinois farms, January 1, 1928, and 2,251,000 on January 1, 1927. The average value per head for all cattle and calves is $69.00 against $59.30 a year ago. The number of milk cows on Illinois farms is placed at 490,000 against 538,000 a year ago and 583,000 on January 1, 1927. The average per head for milk cows and heifers, two years old and over is $39.00 against $26.00 a year ago. For the U. S. the number of all cattle on farms is 55,751,000 against 55,681,000 a year ago and 56,833,000 on January 1, 1927. The number of milk cows for the country as a whole at 21,520,000 is about the same as for the past two years.

Illinois hog numbers show a sharp decline of about nine per cent from a year ago and are now placed at 4,671,000 against 5,133,000 a year ago and 4,709,000 on January 1, 1927. The average value per head of hogs including pigs, is reported at $14.00 against $13.70 a year ago. U. S. hog numbers are placed at 54,956,000 compared with 60,420,000 a year ago and 54,726,000 on January 1, 1927. The poor corn crop of a year ago combined with the slump in hog prices during the latter part of 1928, also the "flu" and cholera scare have all combined to cause heavier than normal marketing. These are the chief factors contributing to reduced numbers. The present statistical position of the hog industry in the U. S. indicates that it will probably be to the advantage of the Illinois farmers to maintain or slightly increase hog numbers in 1929.

Illinois sheep numbers show a rather marked gain of five per cent over those of a year ago and now stand at 664,000 head against 630,000 last year and 800,000 on January 1, 1927. The average value per head for the state is $10.80 against $10.60 a year ago. U. S. sheep numbers are placed at 47,171,000 compared with 45,554,000 last year and 41,881,000 on January 1, 1927. Sheep numbers in the U. S. have increased over 5,000,000 head during the last three years. The horse and mule situation in Illinois is typical of most other states in that numbers continue to show an annual decline. This has been due chiefly to the increased substitution of mechanical power on farms and in the cities. The fact the average values per head show an increase for the first time in several years indicates that work stock is becoming scarce and it seems likely that the average values per head a year from now will show a more marked increase than reported this season. The number of horses and mules on Illinois farms is reported at 239,000 against 274,000 last year. The average value per head is $77.00 against $74.00 a year ago. The number of mules on Illinois farms is estimated at 144,000 against 150,000 a year ago with the average value per head reported at $86.00 against $22.00 last season. U. S. horse numbers are placed at 14,029,000 against 14,340,000 a year ago. U. S. mule numbers 5,447,000 against 5,320,000.

An aftermath of the hurricane of 1926 still is evident at Havana. Navigation is held up by the remains of two naval hulks, one in a canal and one near a dock.

Weekly Review of Agriculture by Farmers Paper

Chicago — (AP)—The usual spring advance in hog prices is expected by the trade to begin earlier this year. The Prairie Farmer weekly review of agriculture said today. Hog receipts have been light during the extreme cold and consequently prices went up slightly. However, with larger receipts prices did not sink much and soon bounded back to the highest level reached since last October. Trade sentiment favors the option that marketing from now on will run lighter than a year ago.

Slowness which has characterized the cattle market for the last few weeks continues with a few loads selling above $14 and an occasional load of yearlings of outstanding finish selling above the $15 mark, but these are not representative of the general trade, either in quality or in price. There is little evidence of permanent price improvement in prospect, at least in the immediate future.

Even with lamb receipts heavier than a week earlier packers were unable to break fat lamb prices last week. Choice feeding lambs were scarce and sold up to $15.15 in the course of the week. A marked revival in speculative interest stimulated by apprehension of damage in the United States to the winter wheat crop appeared to be the chief constructive influence in the sustained strength of the wheat market. Also, merchandising developments were decidedly of a more strengthening character than of late. Statistically, however, the position of the wheat market has not changed fundamentally, and continues to suggest but limited possibilities on the constructive side of price developments.

The corn market is hesitating due largely to reports of rain breaking the drought in Argentina. Parts of the Argentine crop, however, have been so long without rain that the corn has been damaged beyond repair. The Argentine crop year starts April 1. As far as evidence enables one to judge, the domestic cash situation is likely to hold firm for some time to come, and no important recession in prices seems likely. The egg market is nervous. In spite of cold stormy weather which undoubtedly curtailed egg production to some extent and hampered collections, markets have been well supplied with fresh eggs. The egg market will work lower during the next few months as fresh production shows the usual seasonal increase.

Farmer Saves by Hiring Motor Truck

Wilson, Okla.—(AP)—One of the most successful farmers in southern Oklahoma owns neither a truck nor an automobile yet he relies on motor transportation for marketing the products of his farm. He is W. T. Blodgett of Wilson. Whenever he has anything for market he hires a truck, and when he has a trip to make he rides a bus. Blodgett says he saves money by hiring transportation because he does not tie up capital of his own in equipment that is idle a large part of the time. He hauled his peanut crop to market at the cost of only 1 cent a bushel, and he ships livestock to Fort Worth by truck for $30 a load.

SNI-A-BAR TEST HERD IS MODEL FOR CATTLEMEN

Experiments Prove Efficiency of Grading Up Cattle

Grain Valley, Mo.—(AP)—With half its life span of 32 years completed, the institution created by the late William R. Nelson for conducting experiments in cattle breeding already has demonstrated the value of beef production on small farms and the importance of herd improvement through the use of purebred sires.

Nelson, founder of the Kansas City Star, recognized that the permanency of agriculture depends on maintenance of soil fertility with livestock. He had observed that the raising of good animals was more profitable and because of his public spiritedness, he determined to devote a part of his large fortune to encouragement of improved breeding.

The result was the Sni-A-Bar Farms of 1,755 acres, founded in 1913, near Grain Valley, about 25 miles from Kansas City. Nelson died two years later, and his will provided that the experiments were to continue for three decades after his death.

Short-horns were chosen by the editor for the "grading up" demonstration and the Sni-A-Bar enterprise was divided into two farms: one for the demonstration herd and the other for a purebred herd. Two hundred "scrub" cows, red in color and of good stock, were purchased in 1913, near Grain Valley, about 25 miles from Kansas City. Nelson died two years later, and his will provided that the experiments were to continue for three decades after his death.

Calves of the first cross proved that "the bull is half the herd." They showed a widening of back and rump, a thickening of flesh and shortening of legs and neck. The best heifers were kept for breeding. This selection has continued until calves of the sixth cross, now arriving, scarcely differ from those of the pedigreed stock. When the red Short-horn color became well established, white bulls were introduced for producing roans, which enjoy greater favor in markets.

The highest price ever paid for a carcass of fat calves in Kansas City was $26 a hundredweight, which Sni-A-Bar Farms received for 15 grade animals averaging 913 pounds at 13 months.

The demonstration herd is kept under conditions that prevail on an average farm. Cows go on pasture as long as seasons permit. They get no grain.

Sni-A-Bar Farms also conduct feeding experiments. One test has shown how spring calves can be made to weigh 600 pounds by Thanksgiving.

Following the example of the Nelson enterprise, many farmers have found they can raise beef profitably by keeping cows for utilization of rough feeders and using calves for marketing grain "on the hoof."

W. A. Coehel, managing editor of the Weekly Kansas City Star, directs the experimental work at Sni-A-Bar Farms. He formerly was professor of animal husbandry at Kansas State Agricultural college.

Molasses Basis of Coddling Moth Bait

Lafayette, Ind.—(AP)—A low grade molasses solution to which geraniol has been added, has proven the most attractive bait for coddling moths in a number of experiments conducted by L. F. Steiner, entomologist at Purdue university.

Steiner's work is a part of the nationwide effort to find something more satisfactory than arsenical sprays for controlling this serious and widespread enemy of apples and pears. In this country and abroad markets have complained against the arsenic. At present, however, the spray is the best weapon against the moth.

Position of the bait was found as important a factor in determining its efficiency as the attractant it contained. The best traps were located in the extreme tops of trees or high up on the outside, where exposed rather than hidden by foliage, and where located in the higher parts of the orchard.

Valuable Hints for Farmers and Their Good Wives

There would be fewer losses from fires on the farm if buildings were rodded for protection against lightning. Records of fire losses from lightning in Iowa over a period of six years show that 72 per cent of the total fire loss from lightning occurred in farm barns and houses, of which 66 per cent was due to fires in barns that were unrodded.

Live poultry for market should be fed generously just before shipping. If the birds are to be a day or more on the way, nail a tin can or two, filled with whole corn well soaked in water, in each coop. This will provide water and also cut down shrinkage during shipment.

If livestock are seen to shake their heads from side to side, they probably are infested with spinose ear tick. An effective treatment is a mixture of two parts, by volume, of commercial pine tar and one part of cottonseed oil, applied by hand directly in the animal's ears. In cold weather the mixture should be warmed a little.

When beef cattle are to be finished on grass with supplementary feeds it is better to rough them through the winter on a ration of silage, straw and cottonseed or linseed meal, or on a hay and straw or stover ration with some protein meal in the absence of legume hay, and to save the grain for summer feeding on grass.

The use of lime is advisable on heavy soils in the garden, especially when green manure and cover crops are used to add humus to the soil. Lime should not be applied at the same time with either stable manure or mixed fertilizer. Applications of more than 1,000 or 1,500 pounds of lime to the acre should not be made unless a soil test shows that a large amount is necessary. Over-liming may be as harmful as a lack of lime.

The Farm Week in Washington

By FRANK I. WELLER
(Associated Press Farm Editor)

Washington.—(AP)—Out of Moscow, one on the heels of the other, come two reports that combine enough economic information to alarm American wheat growers, even to their sons.

A. I. Rykov, chairman of the council of people's commissioners, announces the Soviet Russian government's intention to reorganize agriculture on the basis of large-scale farming, as represented by collectivists and state farms, and particularly in the case of wheat to employ modern cultural methods and modern machinery.

If that is done, Thomas Campbell of Montana tells the Russian Grain Trust, the Soviet union will become the world's biggest farm produce exporter.

What it would mean for Russia to regain her pre-war status as the exporter of 180 million bushels of wheat annually, is clear only to economists. Already, with Russia unable to feed her own population, the world market sets the price of American wheat.

It is entirely probable, says Dr. O. C. Shue, United States agricultural economist, that if Russian competition is added to that of Canada and Argentina, the American wheat grower would be confined to an American market. He explains that at best it would take Russia some time to reach her goal and that increased population in the United States would increase this country's wheat consumption.

However, to be denied an annual outlet for approximately 200 million bushels of wheat would materially impair wheat prices at home. From

CORNSTALKS TO SUPPLY PAPER FOR STATE USE

Bill Before Legislature Would Make it Official

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Adoption of corn stalk paper for official state use, proposed in the Illinois legislature by Rep. Hugh M. Luckey, of Potomac, would mean a great forward stride in the commercial use of Illinois farm waste, and increased activity for many Illinois farmers, in the opinion of the sponsor of the bill.

Translated into terms of dollars, enactment of the bill would add several hundred thousand dollars to the income of the manufacturers of the paper, and incidentally, to corn growers of Illinois.

For the paper used by the state is not confined to the offices in the state house here. The division of printing purchases printing and paper for all elective state officers, the appellate and Supreme courts, charitable and penal institutions, normal schools, the state fair, the teachers' retirement and pension board, the civil administrative code officers, the service recognition board and the general assembly.

The biennial paper and printing bill approximates one and one-half million dollars every biennium. Representative Luckey's bill also contemplates removing the authority to purchase paper from the superintendent of the division of printing and placing this authority with the department of purchases and constructions, now directed by Henry Kohn.

Luckey's was the second proposal intended to encourage the use of cornstalk paper. Senator Randolph Boyd of Galva had proposed that stationery of members of the assembly be printed on paper made of cornstalks.

WHY FUME ABOUT THE WEATHER?

When biting blasts bitterly blow from the west.
Or a blustering gale from the north.
Why worry and fume when it's all for the best
And the bright days are soon to come forth.

The wild flowers and grasses are slumbering soft.
Blanketed by the snow and the ice.
The leafbeds on twigs in the branches
Wear their crystalline wrappers so nice.

The fields and the gardens are peaceful below;
All of Nature enjoyeth repose;
And when you are fuming about sleet and snow,
Just think what the spring will expose.

Few folks like the winter, some folks like the spring.
But how many like summer and fall?

But nothing the weather may happen to bring
Is delightful and pleasing to all.

The hot, whining wail of a summer-time breeze
It is feared may be blighting to wheat.

Folks yearn for the fall with its coolness and freeze,
But dislike all its snow and its sleet.

Why fume about weather? It comes and it goes,
And its fickleness makes it appear that all it might bring is discomfort and woes.

But you'll find it the mother of cheer.

BIG SUM WILL BE NEEDED FOR FLOOD CONTROL

Ill. General Assembly Will be Asked for Three Million Dollars

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Flood control in the Illinois river valley will cost the state $3,000,000. This is the amount named by the Illinois Valley Flood Control Association, the report of which may be presented to the General Assembly this week, as the probable cost of means recommended for flood prevention.

Senator A. S. Cuthbertson, Bunker Hill, is chairman of the commission. Judge H. V. Teel, Rushville, former member of the House, is vice chairman, and A. T. Dunn, Beardstown, is secretary by executive appointment.

Five sources of information drawn upon by the commission follow:
Old records of river stages and flood conditions, ranging back as far as 1844, much of which has been classified and indexed by the commission.

Transcripts of testimony taken by the commission in Chicago, Beardstown, Peoria and Grafton.
Investigations of conditions in the valley carried on by the state's engineering forces.

Reports of federal engineers of the Mississippi river commission, through co-operation with Brigadier General Thomas Jackson.

First hand information based on an inspection tour made by members of the commission on the United States steamer Mommie, conducted by Col. W. C. Weeks, U. S. district engineer at Chicago, and Maj. James R. Fuller, Peoria.

Recommendations.

The report outlines five methods recommended for flood prevention:
Storage basins in the headwaters of tributary streams to defer as much of the flow at flood seasons as is practical.

Relocation of levees, widening the basins through which the river flows.

Utilization of some existing levee districts and the addition of others as storage facilities at times of flood.

Excavation in the channel of the stream, to deepen and widen the present course of the river.

Reduction of the diversion from Lake Michigan of water that the natural watershed does not send into the Illinois river.

The report recommends co-operation between the Illinois state government, through its Division of Waterways, and the federal agencies relating to river matters, such as the Mississippi River Commission which holds jurisdiction over the river channel from Beardstown to Pearl, a distance of forty miles, is recommended.

Sixteen thousand acres of fertile second bottom land above Beardstown is also considered. This land lies in the bend of the Sangamon river where it loops northwesterly to bend down to its confluence with the Illinois.

Plans Appropriation.
To show the importance of Illinois river flood prevention, the report states that the river and its tributaries drain some 28,000 square miles of territory—about half of Illinois. It places the overflow area at about 400,000 acres along 225 miles of the river's length and from one to six miles in width.

The commission members are in agreement as to the fundamental features of the report which carries all their signatures. The commission will continue to function during the time that the report and legislation bearing upon flood prevention is under consideration, unless sooner dismissed.

Senator Cuthbertson expects to introduce a bill at the same time the report is made to the Assembly, which bill will ask adoption of the report and appropriation of necessary funds. The bill will provide the superintendent of the division of waterways and the director of agriculture be made ex-officio members of the commission. The commission report covers 700 typewritten pages.

UPPER HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY COLD TO MANY CHARGES

Little Excitement in the Senate as Probe Move is Made

BY GILES L. FINDLEY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Springfield, Ill., Feb. —(AP)—Charges and counter charges of misdeeds which have stirred the House of Representatives several times during the present session of the General Assembly have left the Senate cold.

Peace and quiet have reigned. Harmony has been the keynote. Fleas for peaceful sessions by Senator Martin B. Carlson president pro tem and Lieutenant Governor Fred E. Sterling have had their effect.

Even the introduction of the unfavorable Sanitary District payroll inquiry into the deliberations of the upper body created little open comment. Senator Starr's resolution asking senatorial investigation into the charges of payroll padding and mismanagement came as a surprise but was heard quietly. When the resolution was offered and Secretary Faddock started to read the four page document, the senate chamber was a hum with industry. Before he had finished reading the introductory paragraph, the dropping of the proverbial pin could have been heard anywhere in the chamber.

Made No Comment
Senators, pages, clerks, newspaper men and visitors sat or stood where they were and listened intently. At the finish the business of the session was picked up and quietly continued. President pro tem Carlson referred it to the executive committee with out a word of comment.

First dissatisfaction manifested by former supporters of Governor Len Small was voiced last week when Senator Adolph Marks of Chicago took umbrage at the assignment of a bill to committee.

Senator Marks, chairman of the license and miscellaneous committee, informed the president that Senator Barbur's bill for licensing auto drivers should have been assigned to his committee instead of to Senator Dunlap's roads and transportation committee. President Pro tem Carlson asked him to defer arguments on it until Senator Barbur could be present to argue his side of the case.

Marks Waged Battle
Marks then reminded the president from the floor that he had been left off the committee on revenue and finance, of which he had long been a member. He was informed immediately that he had been left off by mistake and the secretary was asked to make the records show Marks as a member of the committee.

Senator James H. Felts, Marion Democrat, arose on the floor at the night session Wednesday and asked the Senate to note that he had voted "aye" on Governor Emmerson's appointments instead of the "no" he first voiced. He was quite disturbed by the incident and denied the notion that Democrats were automatically to oppose the Republicans.

Several Chicago senators have no desire to visit southern Illinois. Senator Flagg, chairman of the committee on election, tried to appoint some of the special subcommittee which is to hear the evidence in the contested election of Senator Felts by William J. Sneed of Herrin.

When Flagg named these gentlemen for the committee, one of them arose hurriedly and asked to be excused. "I can't get down in the country," he explained. Two of three others voiced the same excuse as fast as they could arise. Democratic senators were unfortunate because of their limited representation on the committee and were named in spite of their excuses.

THE INAUGURAL PAGEANT From Washington to Hoover

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
(Associated Press Feature Writer)

Washington —(AP)—In a beautiful phaeton built of the wood of the famous frigate Constitution, Martin Van Buren, gentleman-farmer, lawyer and political leader of the New York democracy, rode to the capitol March 4, 1837, to become the eighth president of the United States.

Beside the new President and behind four big gray horses rode the retiring President, Andrew Jackson. It was the "farewell appearance" in Washington of the Old Eagle of Tennessee, one of its most dramatic figures. A day of brilliant sunshine was melting a soft spring snow that had fallen two days before. Pennsylvania avenue was thronged with citizens from every part of the union, dressed in holiday attire and cheering each other with eager salutations.

Preceded by troops of cavalry and infantry and a band, the presidential party rode down the avenue to the cheers of a multitude. The cheers were repeated with "affecting emphasis" when the whitened head of General Jackson was seen—for the first time since his sickness—above the rest of the party as they ascended the eastern portico of the capitol.

Bearing the marks of illness and of a life of tremendous activity and fierce combat but still retaining his "everlasting look," Old Hickory relinquished the reins of office to his staunch friend and political follower.

The inaugural ball in the evening was described by one who attended it as follows:

"The ball a Carusi's saloon was the most magnificent thing of the kind that has ever taken place in Washington. Many of the most beautiful and accomplished women who have resorted to the metropolis were present and gave grace and lustre to the scene. About half past nine President Van Buren entered the rooms, attended by the heads of departments. General Jackson did not attend. The tables were spread with the utmost profusion and luxury, and champagne flowed most bountifully."

In a conspicuous place on the first page of a Washington newspaper of that day was the announcement of George Dyer, an auctioneer, that he would sell for cash at his store a negro woman, 22 years old, and her two children, 1 and 5 years old.

On the same page there was an announcement by a Pennsylvania avenue shop of the arrival of a consignment of fine New Orleans snuff, and the National theater offered for inaugural visitors Sheridan's comedy, "The Rivals," and a "laughable farce" named "The Mummy of The Liquor of Life."

Punctilious, quiet and seeking the companionship of men of letters, Van Buren did not attain the popularity of Jackson. Some of his critics accused him of "high hatting" the people, declaring he was "too elegant to be a real democrat."

William Allen Butler, an intimate friend, thus describes him:

"He was a gentleman, and he cultivated the society of gentlemen. He never had any associates who were vulgar or vicious. Where he acquired that peculiar neatness and polish of manner which he wore so lightly I do not know. It was not put on, for it never put off. As you saw him once you saw him always—polite, cheerful, self-possessed."

During the Van Buren administration, the White House was renovated, there was more formality in the functions there and entertainment was lavish. Mrs. Fremont, daughter of Senator Benton of Missouri, who was a guest at many of the receptions and dinners wrote:

"Mr. Van Buren brought over from London a fine chef, and his dinners were as good and delicate as possible but his was a formal household, none of the large hospitality of General Jackson and still less of the 'open-doors' of the Tyler regime, when there were many young people who kept to their informal cheery Virginia ways."

Van Buren retained his dignified serenity in defeat as well as victory. He was imperturbable at the close of the day which decided the election of Harrison when he heard the "urchins" repeating about the White House the Log Cabin refrain: "Van Van, is a used up man."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

RUTH LESTER, private secretary, hides her beauty behind heavy spectacles and ill-fitting clothes, hoping thus to work unnoticed. HARRY BORDEN, a handsome, well-to-do man, is a rival of her employer, and is a rival of her employer, and is a rival of her employer.

They become engaged and Ruth comes to the office this Saturday morning with her disguise removed. When Borden comes, Ruth gives him an orchid-tinted envelope which he impulsively thrusts into his pocket. She tells him of a call from "the woman with the contralto voice" whom he has previously refused to talk to.

Ruth gets $500 from the bank and two tickets with driving-room for a winter resort for Borden. She suspects the second ticket is for RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, who calls at the office just after her return from the bank. Mrs. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and mother of his two children, calls for her monthly alimony. Hearing Ruth's laughter catching sight as she does a pistol in the lower desk drawer.

Mrs. Borden promises to return about 1:30. Borden waits for her bank note at Rita as she leaves, reminding her of her bargain. Ruth is called to the detention office. He angrily tries to jump to her assistance across the airshaft but is restrained by some man. Ruth wishes she had not screamed. She wanted only joy to enter into this particular day. At 1:30 she goes to meet Jack for lunch.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

"LORD, darling! I thought you were never coming. Just one more minute and I'd have gone in after you." Jack Hayward greeted the beautiful girl who ran out of Borden's office to join him at the elevator. "Did that beast—?"

"Sh!" Ruth warned. "Look! Here come Minnie and Letty, looking things! I wonder if they'll recognize me? . . . Hello, Minnie! Letty! Aren't you going to speak to me?"

The two called-clad, gray-haired, stoop-shouldered, old women who had been gossiping together as they plodded down the hall, stopped and stared, then grinned humbly.

The older of the two women nudged her companion with her broom handle. "It's Miss Lester, Letty! Now, don't that beat all? You've got your specs off, ain't you, dearie? My, what a change! Letty, maybe if us girls 'ud take off our specs we'd catch us a beau, too, eh?" and Minnie cackled shrill mirth at the idea.

Letty Miller shook her gray head slowly, a resigned smile flicking across her lined face. "Reckon our day is over, Minnie. But it's nice to see a young couple sweetheartin', one as handsome as the other—"

"Just for that, Letty!" Jack laughed, drew a dollar bill out of his pocket, and tucked it into the torn, sagging pocket.

They were passing through the lobby of the office building when Ruth suddenly remembered that she had left her savings bank book in the office.

"Wait here for me, darling," she told Jack. "I forgot something. Be right back. No, don't come up with me," and she darted back into the elevator.

A few precious seconds were lost while she fished in her handbag for her key. Darn Harry Borden any way! Afraid to stay alone in his own office if the outer door was unlocked! Praying that he would not hear her sally ran to the filing cabinet and pulled out a folder marked "Ruth Lester—Personal."

Ruth barged, pulling at his arms frantically. "Come on into the elevator. It wasn't Mr. Borden! I swear it wasn't! I struck my face against the door! You've got to believe me! Jack!"

Her voice changed suddenly, became ominously quiet and steady, as the young man flung off her clinging hands. "If you don't come with me now, if you won't believe me when I say it wasn't Mr. Borden who hurt me, in spite of what you saw this morning, I'll take back the promise I gave you last night. I mean it!"

Jack Hayward came to his senses. He shook his head, as if to clear from his eyes the red mists of

STRIBLING MUST KEEP OUT OF AIR UNTIL BIG FIGHT

Promoter Dempsey Goes to Court to Stop the Use of Plane

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 5—(AP)—Young Stribling does not expect to fly today. Nor tomorrow. Nor any other day until he has kept his February 27 fight engagement with Jack Sharkey in Flamingo Arena.

Promoter Jack Dempsey is determined that flying shall have no place in the conditioning program of the Macon boxer-aviator. He is so determined that he has stopped asking the Georgian to stay on the ground and has filed injunction proceedings to keep Stribling out of the air.

Young Stribling purchased an airplane several years ago, and has hoped about the country in it for his various matches.

Stribling today was prepared for his usual two and one-half miles of road work, while his opponent expected to put in a hard round of boxing for camera men.

To Give Exhibition
Sharkey has been invited to go through an exhibition with his sparring partners in Tampa Friday night, and Dempsey may accompany him to the West Coast city.

The managers' battle over the referee began yesterday. Dempsey has advised "Pat" Stribling and Johnny Buckley, managers of the principals, that if no selection has been made a week before the fight, he will choose the referee himself.

Among those already mentioned for the job are Dave Miller and Walter Eckersall, Chicago; Ed Dickerson, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Tom Reilly, Philadelphia; Lou Magnolia and Jack O'Sullivan, New York; Max Hinkle, Cleveland; Slim McClelland, Detroit and two unnamed Massachusetts referees.

HOW ABOUT WILLIE?

It has been rather thoroughly broadcast that Jack Sharkey didn't cover himself with glory in his fight with K. O. Christner. He did win the decision, but there were some squawks about the justice of the award.

Willie Stribling, the same night that Sharkey fought Christner, met some fellow named Smith down in New Orleans and the referee stopped the fight, along about the fourth round. Not so much noise was made about that fight. Not so much appeared in general circulation about Willie's showing.

But it seems that to all those who witnessed the thing in New Orleans the Stribling boy did not knock the customers dead with a demonstration of championship class.

HERE'S SOME COMMENT

Mr. Harry Martinez, a very competent boxing critic, had a few words to say about the Georgia boy in his column in the New Orleans States and here they are:

"Willie Stribling, whom the entire South is pulling for to become the recognized successor to the throne vacated by Gene Tunney, has departed from our midst leaving some doubt as to his being a truly great heavyweight fighter.

"After hearing so much about his long string of knockouts, the fans of New Orleans had a chance to see this ring sensation, but not everyone who crowded the Coliseum left the arena fully convinced that W. L. is the logical successor to the retired champion. If Stribling's opponents whom he has been bowling over almost weekly, are in the same class of Ralph Smith, then his 'kayos' cannot be taken too seriously.

"Smith was nothing short of a 'Push Over.' He was in there for nothing but to take a lacing. He possessed no fighting ability at all—just a human punching bag. The bout, as it ended, goes in the book as a knockout for Stribling, still Smith wasn't counted out.

WILLIE MISSED PLenty

"The dyed-in-the-wool fans cannot understand why Stribling missed the big fellow so much. The way he missed Smith at times was just like a fellow missing a punching bag. That should not be for a man who is touted as the next heavyweight champion of the world. It left some room for argument in the minds of many fans who ask the question, "If he missed Smith that way, what would he do with a clever fighter?"

MUST BEAT GOOD ONES

"Stribling did not stand up there and punch Smith into submission. His most effective blows were landed when in a clinch. He hasn't gotten over his old wrestling tactics at all together, this bout showed. He would go into a clinch and, while standing almost behind Smith, would let go a series of lefts to the face. A more experienced fighter than Smith no doubt would protect himself from such tactics, at least after being caught a couple of times.

"Men of the type of Jack Sharkey and Tommy Loughran will put Stribling to an acid test. If he can beat this pair, then there will be no dispute as to his being the champion."

Board of Control of H. S. Athletic Assn. Acts on Two Cases

Chicago, Feb. 5—(AP)—Postponement of action in the Campaign high school case and the placing of Waverly high school on probation are among the decisions reached by the Board of Control of the Illinois State High School Athletic Association as the result of hearings in Bloomington last week.

The board's previous order that Waverly should forfeit all football games in which an ineligible player participated last fall was rescinded upon admission of new evidence. It was announced yesterday that the board, upon reviewing the case, had decided to expell the school from the Association in the event of further infractions of the eligibility rules.

Charges that Campaign used a player older than 21 years will be taken up at a later date. The board decided the evidence at hand was insufficient to warrant a decision.

BILLIARD CHAMP BEATEN IN HIS FIRST CONTEST

Matsuyama Trims Horemans at 18.2 Balk-line Last Eve

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 5—(AP)—The world's 18.2 balkline billiards crown rested a trifle insecurely on Leonard Horemans' curly-thatched head today.

The slim Belgian made an inauspicious start in defense of the game's most coveted title last night when he bowed to Kinrey Matsuyama, the pint-sized Japanese, 400 to 292 in 16 innings. It was the first match in the championship round, robin tournament in which Horemans stakes his crown against the assaults not only of Matsuyama but also of Weiker Cochran and Young Jake Schaefer of the United States, Eric Hagelacher of Germany, and Felix Grange of France.

Somewhere between his hotel quarters and the Level Club, scene of the tournament, Horemans lost control and there lies the whole story of his defeat by Little Matsuyama.

Not once during the dull and lengthy match did the champion exhibit the uncanny control of the balks that won for him the title in a challenge test against Cochran last March. Horemans spent most of the evening trying to make points with the balks at either end, or side, of the table. Only twice did he compile runs or better than 50. Trailing by 324 at the end of the 11th inning, the champion temporarily forgot his nervousness and collected a string of 59. He followed this streak with a collection of 58 in the fifteenth inning and added 44 on his next and last attempt. These three runs, his best of the evening, could not save him from overwhelming defeat but they did not contrive to make the score a bit more respectable.

BRENNAN SLAYER, FUGITIVE FROM PRISON, CAUGHT

Two Years of Liberty for
Jos. Piolo, is Ended by Police

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 5—(AP)—The slayer of Bill Brennan, heavyweight pugilist, was in jail today after being a fugitive from Sing Sing prison for two years.

Joseph Piolo, who disappeared mysteriously from prison on the night of March 2, 1927, was arrested here last night as a suspicious character. Detectives nabbed him after watching his movements for more than a week. Their suspicions had been aroused by his apparent prosperity with no visible means of support.

When approached in a cafe he said he was James Lavelle of Newark. Detectives said they found a pistol in his pocket. An automobile he had been driving was registered in Union county under a fictitious name. Police said his identity as the escaped convict was established through police records.

Described Escape
The prisoner gave a detailed account of the manner in which he escaped from Sing Sing.

He said that under cover of a heavy fog he slipped out of his cell carrying his mattress with him. Making his way to the top of the wall with the mattress, he said he held it before him and leaped into the Hudson river.

Swimming a distance of about three city blocks, he said, he climbed ashore and was away before the siren on the prison sounded, warning that a prisoner had escaped.

Piolo and four others were indicted for shooting Brennan in his New York cabaret in July 1924. Piolo pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the first degree in October of the same year and was sentenced to Sing Sing for 20 years.

Bill Brennan, Chicago pugilist, who was at one time a contender for the heavyweight championship, retired after being knocked out by Louis Firpo, Jack Dempsey knocked him out twice, once in six rounds in 1918 and in 12 rounds in 1920.

Date Threatens to Prevent Davis Cup Play in Americas

Paris, Feb. 5—(AP)—The date set for the completion of the second round stands as the only serious threat to the United States in its path to the interzone final of the 1929 Davis Cup competition. It was decided yesterday when the draw was made that the round must be concluded before May 8, when the tennis season has barely opened in Canada, the first opponent of the United States.

It seems almost impossible for the authorities to arrange a schedule for a match between the United States and the Dominion and one between the winner and Japan at so early a date. The other second round tie presents few difficulties as Cuba and Mexico are the contestants.

In the European zone, a somewhat stiffer schedule for the favorites has been arranged. Twenty-four nations, including Chile, which was accepted, although its entry arrived 24 hours late, choose this zone. The South Americans open against Denmark in the first round.

No matter what the conditions are, Franca is expiring another battle with the United States in the challenge round and is hoping for the return of Bill Tilden to lead the American team.

Fergus Continues to Fight for Reapportionment of Illinois

Chicago, Feb. 5—(AP)—The Sieg of John B. Fergus against the Illinois legislature for reapportionment of the State Moved today to the Circuit Court with quo warranto proceedings as the latest ammunition.

The veteran exponent of reapportionment was confined to his home by illness, but his attorney had prepared the request that the court compel all state Senators and Representatives to show by what authority they are acting as legislators.

Fergus contends that they lack authority because elected from senatorial districts that are obsolete and void through failure to reapportion the state.

Granting of the petition by Judge Victor Arnold would compel every legislator to appear in court in person or by counsel to defend his authority to hold office.

The petition was signed yesterday in behalf of the people by State's Attorney John A. Swanson. It is the latest of a long series of suits brought by Fergus, all instituted to bring about remapping of state districts. Illinois was last apportioned in 1901.

Injury Jinx Again After Sam Mandell

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 5—(AP)—The injury jinx has tagged Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, again.

Mandell wrenched his left shoulder in the ninth round of his non-championship match with Don Davis last night and appeared badly hurt although his manager, Eddie Kane, said it would not keep him out of the ring for long. Mandell won the decision easily in 10 rounds.

Last fall, his collar bone was fractured, forcing a rest of several months.
